

A short survey about whether you read instructions

Survey Results Report

Generated September 25, 2026

20 people have responded

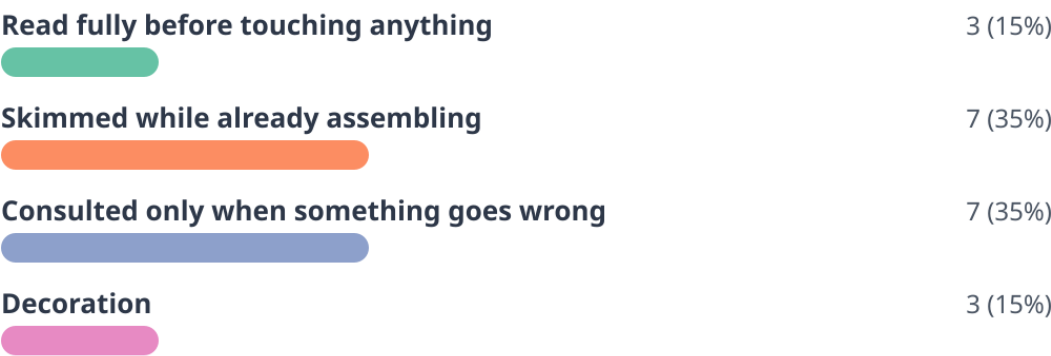

September 25, 2026 – September 25, 2026

Survey Overview

|                 |                    |
|-----------------|--------------------|
| Total Responses | 20                 |
| Published       | September 25, 2026 |
| First Response  | September 25, 2026 |
| Last Response   | September 25, 2026 |

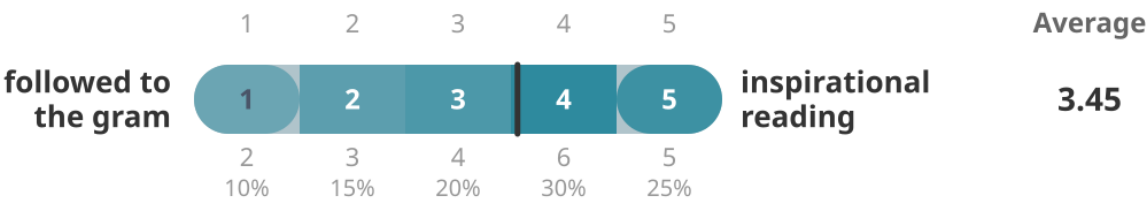

#1 A new gadget arrives. The instructions are:

20 responses

#2 Recipes:

20 responses

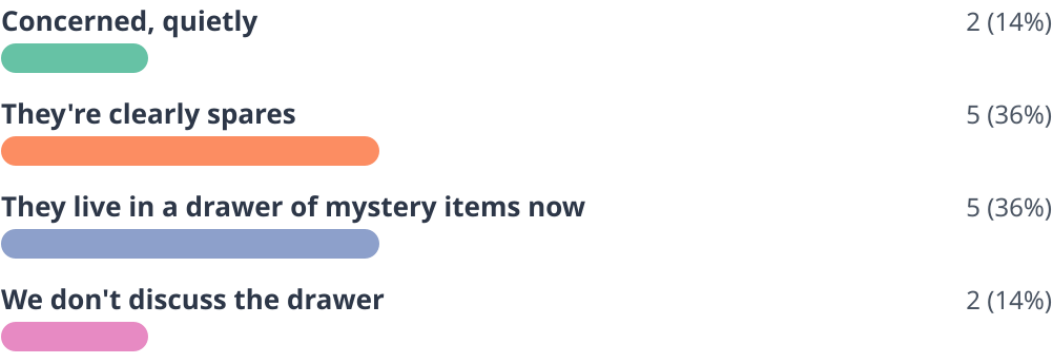

#3 Have you ever finished assembling furniture and had parts left over?

20 responses

#4     And how do you feel about those parts?

14 responses

#5    Warranty cards:

20 responses

#6 What's the best instruction you've ever ignored — and how did it go?

11 responses

- Read all instructions before beginning. I began. (1 person)
- Tighten every screw at the end. I tightened them at the start. The drawer closes at an angle now. (1 person)
- Rest the dough for an hour. We were hungry. The bread was fine. (1 person)
- Assemble on a soft surface. The floor has a scratch I now call character. (1 person)
- Let the paint dry overnight. It had a fingerprint by nine. (1 person)
- Two-person assembly. It took one person and one afternoon. (1 person)
- Wash before first use. It was a spatula. It was fine. (1 person)
- Do not stand on the top step. I did not. I thought about it a lot. (1 person)
- Keep your receipt. (1 person)
- None. I read them, and it went the way they said it would. (1 person)
- Charge fully before first use. I used it at forty percent and nothing bad happened. (1 person)